Trading on the Stock Exchange was light during the two hours Saturday, Sugar being the only stock which displayed anything like activity, and the dealings therein were less than the usual volume. A raid was made on Sugar at the opening, which forced the price down 1%, to 102%, which is just 10 per cent, below the figures current a week ago, and 11½ per cent. below the highest point reached recently, the stock having sold up to 114% on Aug. 21. There was nothing new in the situation affecting the sugar interests which developed veloped that would account for the decline, and it can only be ascribed to the manipu-lations of the clique. There was a full recovery in the later dealings, followed by a reaction of ½ per cent., which represents the loss on the day. Chicago Gas was the only other share in which the transactions exceeded 5,000 shares. It recorded a decline of 14 per cent. with a final recovery of %. Northern Pacific preferred rose 2 per cent. on foreign buying and sales to cover short contracts. It is said there is a very large outstanding short interest in this stock, to which fact is as-cribed its strength. Louisville & New Albany broke from 29% to 28 on one sale of a hundred shares. In the rest of the list the trading was insignificant, but the changes made were in the direction of higher figures. On the week the movement was irregular, but in the main the tendency was in the direction of lower values. The principal changes are: Declines-Sugar, 9 per cent.; Cordage preferred, 6; Cordage common, 3½; Rock Island, 3¾; Lead preferred, 3; National Starch first pre-ferred, Manhattan, Consolidated Gas, Chi-

Only a Fair Saturday's Trade on Commission Row. The month opens with a fair trade for Saturday, especially on Commission row.

the month business is usually a little quiet, but traveling salesmen ray the cutlook for a good September business is decidedly flattering. Stocks are low. Retail mer-chants have their back bills out of the way, and with fall-like weather it is believed trade will reach a very respectable volume. Prices the past week have taken on a steadier tone in staple groceries and articles which come into daily consumption in the way of eatables. For several days the poultry and egg markets have been steady and firm. Fruits and vegetables of the season seldom sell lower in the early fall than at the present time, and the quality of fruits and vegetables is much better than had been looked for. The seed market is rather quiet, owing to the dry weather for plowing, but prices are well held on most descriptions. The wool market is flat and it now looks as if local holders of wool would lose money on their holdings, notwithstanding the fact that they purchased at extremely low prices. The local grain market the latter part of the week was more active than earlier in the week, but prices the week through have varied little. CAPTAIN WRIGHT'S STORY.

General Grant's Great Kindness to s Wounded Confederate. T. O. Moore, in Blue and Gray.

The following story, recently related to me by Capt. Ben T. Wright, will, I trust, prove interesting to all old soldiers, North and South, and to all Americans who revere the memory of the grand old silent soldier, U. S. Grant. I relate it as it was told me:

"I was captain of Company F. Thirty-eighth Alabama Volunteers, infantry regi-ment, at the battle of Missionary Ridge. Our regiment was in line near some old log houses, near General Bragg's head-quarters. The first day of the battle we did some hard fighting and lost heavily in trying to hold this part of the line. I was with my men, encouraging and urging them to hold the line and drive the enemy back, when a Minie ball cut my swore buckle, passed through my side and lodged near my hip bone. I fell and was unable to get up. About this time the federals charged with such fury that our boys gave way and the two lines went sweeping over

"I don't remember how long I lay on the ground. I saw a lot of horsemen approaching. They halted near me. I saw that one of them was a staff officer, and he proved to be a member of General Grant's staff. I have forgotten his name. He saw me, dismounted, and came to me and asked if he could do anything for me. I told him 'no.' He saw I was badly hurt, and told an orderly to bring him some water. He handed him a canteen. He took a flask from his pocket, poured some whisky into a cup and told me to drink it, holding me up while I did so. He then went and mounted his horse.

"About this time General Grant rode up, a short distance from where I still lay on the ground. He inquired of the first officer who I was. The staff officer replied: 'It is a rebel officer, and he is badly hurt.' Gen. Grant then got down and came to me and wanted to know my condition, inquired how I was shot and if I was in much pain. He soon learned that I was seriously, if not mortally, wounded, whereupon he called his staff surgeon and had him examine me. "The General then wrote something and handed it to his orderly, who took it and rode off. Soon some federal soldiers came with a litter, and General Grant told them to take me down the mountain to the ambulance train and thence to the hospital at Chattanooga.

"I was placed on a litter and carried down the mountain side, more than half a mile, over as rough a road as you ever saw, and, with all the care the men used to keep from hurting me, I suffered a great deal, and by the time I reached the ambulance I was about ready to pass in my check. The ambulance soon conveyed me to the hospital, where written instructions from General Grant were handed the surgeon in charge, stating that I was to have special atten-"A Dr. Cook from Indiana, I think, took me in charge, and for nine days and nights he stayed by me and never let me want for anything. It was a close shave, but I made it, though. General Grant came to see me twice and sat some time by my bedside, and talked kindly and friendly to me about my home, where I was from and about the war. I never can forget him for his kindness to me. Dr. Cook was like a brother to me-God bless him!-and I would like so much to know if he is alive. If so I want to write him and thank him for saving my life, and if he is alive and will come to Comanche the latch string will hang on the outside of the door. After I had recovered enough to be moved I was sent North with other prisoners. Went to Camp Chase; from there to Fort Delaware. Was in prison twenty-two months, and there when the war ended. I will always have a kind feeling for General Grant. Have never recovered from wound.'

ROBINSON CRUSOE'S ISLAND.

It Is Inhabited and Brings Chili 200 Pounds Rent a Year.

It is not generally known that Juan Fernandez—the island on which Alexander Selkirk, the Robinson Crusoe of romance, lived for so many years—is at the present time inhabited. Two valleys, winding down from different directions, join a short distance back from the shore, and there now stands a little village of small nuts scattered round a long, one-storied building with a veranda running its whole length. In this house lives the man who rents the island from the Chilian government and the village is made up of a few German and Chilian families.

The tiny town is called San Juan Bautista, and the craterlike arm of the sea on which it is situated and where Alexander Selkirk first landed is now called Cumber-land bay. The island is rented for about £200 a year. The rent is paid partly in dried fish. Catching and drying the many varieties of fish and raising cattle and vegetables wholly occupy the contented settlers, and much of their little income is obtained from the cattle and vegetables sold to passing vessels. The cattle need no care and the vegetables almost grow wild. Turnips and radishes, first sown here by Selkirk himself, now grow rank and wild in the valleys like weeds. There is also a race of wild dogs which completely overrun the island, depending for existence mainly upon seals. They are descendants of a breed of dogs left by the

At the back of the little town, in the first high cliff, is a row of caves of remarkable appearance hewn into the sandstone. An unused path leads to them, and a short climb brings one to their dark mouths. About forty years ago the Chilian government thought that a good way to get rid of its worst criminals would be to transport them to the island of Juan Fernandez. Here, under the direction of Chilian soldiers, these poor wretches were made to dig caves to live in. In 1854 they were taken back again, however, and the caves have since been slowly crumbling away.

The narrow ridge where Selkirk watched is now called "The Saddle," because at either end of it a rocky hummock rises like a pommel. On one of these is now a large tablet with inscriptions commemorating Alexander Selkirk's long and lonely stay on the island. It was placed there in 1868 by the officers of the British ship Topez. A small excursion steamer now runs from Valparaiso to Juan Fernandez island. The round trip is made in six days, and three of these may be spent on the Island in fishing and visiting these lonely but beautiful spots which nearly two hundred years ago were the haunts of Robinson Crusoe.

ESTIMATED THEY ARE CARRYING 150,000,000 OF LONG WHEAT.

All Grain Suffered Declines at Chicago Yesterday, While the Provision Market Advanced.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 .- Board of Trade business was rather light to-day, and the bears had the advantage in the contemplation of a big array of figures as likely to represent the receipts of Tuesday morning. Another expected addition to the visible of wheat of about 1,000,000 bushels was also against the bulls. As a consequence, September wheat is 1/2c lower than it closed yesterday. Corn, after a lively rise in the beginning, tumbled until %c lower for September and 3sc lower for May. September oats closed %c lower and provisions finished at advances. A general desire to anticipate the effect on Tuesday morning of the accumulations of the receipts during the Sunday and Monday holidays caused wheat to rule weak. It was steady for about an hour, but broke down when a sudden collapse in the price of September wheat reawoke the wheat traders to what had previously been in their mind about the expected big receipts on Tuesday. The receipts to-day were rather smaller than estimated for Chicago, and at Minneapolis and Duluth the reported receipts did not indicate any likelihood of the volume of farmers' deliveries in the Northwest increasing. The foreign markets were steady and the deliveries of wheat on September contracts were all taken care of by the elevator proprietors. About 2,000,000 bushels was the quartity which was supposed to be tendered in the morning by a few houses and, after going the rounds, it found its way back to the carriers who have it sold for December. Trade was light and the price was thus easily affected by a moderate amount of short selling. The bulls are lugging probably 150,000,-000 bushels of long wheat in this market and they need help when their burden is increased by the impact of the short sellers jumping on their shoulders. December opened at 56%c, or %c below its closing value on Friday. It advanced to 57%c, sold off to 561/2c, and closed at 565/ac. There were practically no deliveries of corn on September contracts to-day, and consequently the shorts for the month were alarmed. The holder of the cash corn did nothing to allay their fears, but, on the contrary, J. C. Schwarts's recognized brokers were bidding for the limited offerings during the first hour of the session. September opened at 57c, as against 56% at the close vesterday. It rose excitedly to 58%c, and, after reacting to 58c, close to which it held for a short time, it had a sensational tumble to 561/2c, and later to 56c, at which latter point it was when the market closed. The weakness came from expected heavy Monday receipts. May opened firm at about yesterday's closing price, and advanced under the influence of the strength in September until the former touched 54c. It declined from 5ic to 52%c, and closed at 53c, or %c lower than on the previous afternoon. Receipts estimated for Monday at 550 carloads, was a weakening

The oats market opened with a firmer tone and orders quite plentiful, but this strength lasted only a short time, for with the corn market weakened, oats followed, and at the end of the session prices were considerably lower. The decline was also helped by liberal offerings and a rather tame demand. At the opening the decline commenced and 29½c was the lowest price reached. That price was bid at the close. Provisions were strong. There was very little disposition to sell short. The deliveries on September contracts were insignificant. Hog receipts for the day were 10,000, and the price quoted from the yards showed about 10c advance in their price, aiding in the advance. Pork sold at $14 for both September and January and closed worth $13.95 for both deliveries, being an improvement of from 12½c in September to 7½c ir January. Lard closed with .10c gain in September and .05c in January. Ribs unchanged. Freight rates steady at 1%c for wheat, 1%c for corn and 1%c or cats to Buffalo.

Estimates for Monday: Wheat, 360 cars; corn, 550 cars; oats, $25 cars; hogs, 25,000 head. During the next week 95,000 head of hogs are expected. To-day's receipts: Wheat, 259,000 bu; corn, 211,000 bu; oats, 374,000 bu. Shipments -Wheat, 97,000 bu; corn, 192,000 bu; oats, 116,000 bu.
